Sharon Abrams, PHR, SPHR

B.S. Management & Human Resources : Wilmington University
M.S Human Resources & Management : Wilmington University

A Strategic and tactical hands-on Human Resources Leader in both corporate and divisional settings in Financial Services, Technology, Engineering, Construction and Manufacturing industries.

She is an innovator and creator of programs that enhance human capital and motivate a workforce and possesses the expertise in areas including employee/management training, recruiting and onboarding, enhancing employee relations & often operating as a mentor and coach to both management and administrative/professional employees

Sharon left High School with a diploma in Secretarial and Administrative skills. She got a job at the DuPont Experimental Station as a Secretary and entered University of Delaware as a part time student. Her first Human Resources position was at a small manufacturing company as an Administrator attending Wilmington University at the same time toward a degree in Human Resources. She was promoted several times and became Director of HR for the company that had grown to be a Global Manufacturer. She made several moves to more diverse companies that were bigger and more technically oriented with increased responsibilities. Today she works for a specialized Trust Company, smaller but in some respects more complicated. She's married to this unbelievable husband and raised 5 children, and has 8 grandchildren
